CONSTANCE TALMADGE, WILL ROGERS, MABEL NORMAND ARE BOOKED AT TORRANCE THEATRE

"Dumb-bell" has gone into the discard in Hollywood.

A new word now reigns supreme. It's "dulcy" now when somebody pulls a "honey" or, in politer parlance, a faux pas. It's "dulcy" when somebody "spills the beans" by talking out of turn. It's "dulcy" when some "green pea" asks you in the presence of your wife if you're going to sit in at the poker game that night after you've told your better half you're going to lodge meeting.

"Dulcy" was derived from Constance Talmadge's new film production of that name. In this screen adaptation of one of New York's biggest comedy successes, Constance Talmadge finds herself in a new type of role. It is that of a well-meaning, meddling wife, Dulcinea Smith, who is always entangling her husband in embarrassments by her lack of tact. The wags of the studio saw the aptness of the name and adopted it, with the result that it has become one of the standard studio "wise cracks."

"Dulcy" was directed for Producer Joseph M. Schenck by Sidney Franklin. It is a First National picture, and will be shown at the Torrance theatre on next Sunday and Monday.

Will Rogers, Too

Will Rogers, famous cowboy comedian, is the star of Hal Roach's new two-reel Pathcomedy, "Jus' Passin' Through," which will be seen at the Torrance theatre next Sunday and Monday. Rogers plays Jubilo, one of his famous and funny tramp roles.

Jubilo, the hero, has heard that work was plentiful in the east—so he started west! His varied travels on the "rails and rods" led him to the town of Santa Susana, which did not tolerate "wanderers" in any form. They even had a special guard out to meet each train and prevent any unwelcome landings.

But Jubilo, exercising his ingenuity, made an entrance into the precincts of the town without the knowledge of the law's minions, and immediately began to wish he hadn't. Although he wasn't particular—he was willing to eat on either the American or the European plan—he had his troubles finding anything to eat at all. But then, who ever heard of a tramp starving?

Mabel Normand Coming

"The Extra Girl," the latest Mack Sennett production, with Mabel Normand as the star, which comes to the Torrance theatre next Tuesday and Wednesday, is a picture of the good and bad which is in every one, and of naive mistakes that react to the merriment of the audiences. Mack Sennett wrote the story, and in "The Extra Girl" he tells the little country girls the world over that just having a ticket to Hollywood doesn't mean stardom and a salary in four figures the next day.

In presenting the truth that has the movie-mad girl as the pivotal figure, Sennett handles it with scenes that are unusually funny, and there is at no time any inclination to preach to any person. The points, however, go over with a bang.

It is Sennett's whole idea to make the world laugh. While the production has its moments of pathos and drama, the real sweep is for the comedy angle, and it accomplishes its purpose.

Miss Normand is seen as the extra girl at the Hollywood studio. The nearest she gets to stardom is to see the stars as they go to and from work.

Ruined! $1000 worth of clothes! In the filming of the oil scenes in "The Meanest Man in the World," a First National picture which comes to the Torrance theatre Saturday, Jan. 5, Bert Lytell, star of the picture, Blanche Sweet, Bryant Washburn and a dozen other well known players receive an oil bath when a gusher comes in. Edward F. Cline ordered the cast to wear good clothes because several close-up scenes were to be made just prior to the oil gushing episode.

After the scene was made the thoughts of Cline that the clothes could be cleaned were cast to the four winds. They were completely ruined.

Result: An estimate was given by each player on his or her garments and checks from "the inner office" were immediately forthcoming—and in order. Such is the life of the movie business.

ENJOY FAMILY DINNERS

Three family dinners marked the Christmas season in the J. M. Fitzhugh family. Sunday a dinner was given at the Thornton Fitzhugh home in Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Fitzhugh entertained Christmas eve, and on Christmas day the Dr. S. J. Rowley home was the scene of a jolly gathering.

The guests who enjoyed the dinners were Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Fitzhugh and family, Mr. and Mrs. Thornton Fitzhugh, Mr. and Mrs. Mason Fitzhugh, Miss Anna Fitzhugh, Dr. and Mrs. I. J. Rowley, Miss Mattie Rowley, Earl Rowley, and Andrew McMillan.

REBEKAH NOTES

The initiatory degree was conferred at the regular meeting of the Trio Rebekah lodge, held Wednesday evening.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

LOMITA NOTES

Mr. and Mrs. A. McDonald and family, of Brethren street, were guests Christmas of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Durfelt of San Pedro.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Schnellorfer and son Joe enjoyed a drive around the Palos Verdes estates Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Smith and Mrs. Lydia Basse, of Narbonne avenue, spent Christmas with Mr. and Mrs. Myron Smith of Long Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Welte of Brethren street were holiday guests of Mr. Welte's sister, Mrs. Victor Benjamin, of Los Angeles. Miss Constance Welte, who has just returned from Atchison, Kan., was also a guest.

EDGAR REEVE WINS RADIO SET

The complete radio set given away by the Brea Electric company at their store Monday evening was won by Edgar Reeve, son of "Hardware" Reeve, of Torrance.

The idea was another way to advertise this popular establishment, and it brought several hundred people to the store to register for the drawing, which was free of charge.

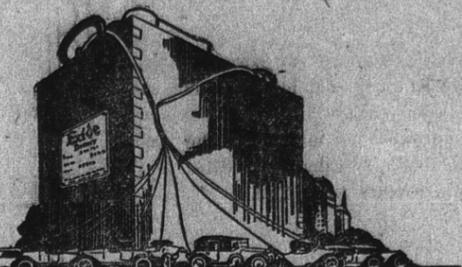

WILL APPEAL CASE

R. D. Gard, found guilty in Judge Hunter's court of violating the Wright act, has given notice of appeal.
